

I believe that NJ has done a better job in protecting me from unwanted calls thhan the Fedral Government. I do not want that changed. I believe my phone is for my use, period. It is therefore unlisted. This has never stopped random collers at all hours. The most severe were the various compeeting phone companies that the FCC it self created.

I believe that the FCC itself is lax as as such shound not attempt to infreng on additional protection that the state of New Jersey has afforded.

My only option would be to disconnect the "Land line" and go entirely wireless.

This would, inturn result in less jobs and less income. Do you want these results?
